

Department of Criminal Law and Criminology

Subjects:

Criminal procedural law
Criminal substantive law
Criminology
Criminalistics
Evidentiary procedure within criminal proceedings
Clinic of criminal law
Clinic of criminal proceedings
Forensic medicine
Introduction to the Criminal Law
Introduction to the Criminology

Scientific research activity:

Members of the department have participated in many domestic research projects and grant tasks as well as international research projects:

Up-to-date research projects:

APVV 19-0050: Criminal law protection of liberty responsible researcher: doc. JUDr. Eva Szabová, PhD.

Vega no. 1/0162/21: Implementation of European tools against money laundering and confiscation of proceeds of crime in the conditions of the Slovak Republic responsible researcher: doc. JUDr. Eva Szabová, PhD.

Profile:

The Department of Criminal Law and Criminology is an integral part of the structure of the departments of the Faculty of Law of Trnava University and participates in the education and preparation of students for their future legal profession. The members of the department provide teaching of subjects mainly in the field of public law, specifically substantive criminal law and criminal procedural law, but also some related scientific disciplines, such as criminology, criminalistics or forensic medicine. In addition to providing theoretical knowledge, which is the basis of professional profiling of future graduates, the aim of the department is to acquaint students with some practical aspects of criminal law, especially the attributes of criminal proceedings that can be obtained in the course „Evidentiary procedure within criminal proceedings“. The Department of Criminal Law and Criminology not only participates in the legal education of students, but also seeks to ensure that students acquire basic ethical values that are inevitably linked to their future legal profession.

The members of the department are significant experts in the field of criminal law, who regularly and actively participate in international scientific conferences organized at home and abroad. In addition, they are involved in solving many scientific projects.