SUMMER SCHOOL in BUDAPEST 2019

DEMOCRACY, RULE OF LAW, CONSTITUTIONAL IDENTITY

Democracy and the rule of law are key foundations for society. Today's legal theories offer various interpretations of these concepts, and contemporary political movements present sharply different takes on how democracy and the rule of law should be implemented. National constitutions and political cultures remain distinctive, but debates aimed at achieving consensus on fundamental democratic values continue. How does globalisation accommodate the constitutional identity of particular societies?
